

REGULAR SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

At the regular meeting of the City Council last Monday evening, July 8, Mayor H. H. Smith presiding, a communication was received from the League of Municipalities announcing that the last legislature had passed an act imposing liability on all municipalities for damages resulting from the negligent operation of motor vehicles by city employees, and explaining that municipalities could be safeguarded by carrying insurance. That larger cities would probably be able to carry their own, but smaller cities would have to get together and form a fleet rate of insurance.

The street committee reported that the arches at the head of Templeton and Roosevelt avenues had been repaired, tiled and painted, and look very presentable. This committee also reported that the cutting of weeds throughout the city is under way.

A report from the ordinance committee confirmed the fact that the fire department ordinance has been filed and is now ready for the board's consideration.

A communication was received from Company No. 2, Daly City Fire Department, announcing that Mr. Shoup had withdrawn from the membership roles.

The Council received a letter from the police department expressing thanks for the raise in salary which they received this month, and mentioned the fact that their efforts are ever interested in the welfare of the city.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CONFER
SECOND AND THIRD DEGREES

The second and third degrees of the Knights of Columbus were exemplified to a class of twenty-five candidates at Eagles Hall last Sunday afternoon. This being the first time that these beautiful degrees were conferred locally, the event was a gala one in the history of the Daly City Council.

State Supreme Warden Dave Supple conferred the third degree, assisted by State Deputy Robert A. MacKenzie. The work was put on beautifully and many present praised the conferring officers highly.

Following the exemplary work, a sumptuous banquet was enjoyed by a host of Knights, approximately one hundred and fifty, who gathered around tables that circled the hall, while a committee of local brothers served them. During the course of the banquet Jerry Lalor, District Deputy of San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, acted as toastmaster. He called upon the following: Rev. Father Jones Donohoe, Rev. Father Frank Lynch, State Deputy Robert A. MacKenzie, State Supreme Warden Dave Supple, District Deputy of Eastbay Councils Bob Rooney, Grand Knight of Daly City Council Richard Ennis, Grand Knight of San Mateo Council Miles A. Sharkey, Grand Knight of Palo Alto Council Adrian Ward, and Past Grand Knight of Alameda Council Ed Welsh.

The entire affair was a grand success, and many prominent men of San Mateo county and the Eastbay voiced their wishes and hopes that Daly City Council keep up the splendid record it has made thus far. W. L. M.

SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MEN TO LOCATE IN DALY CITY

The Jefferson Shoppe, formerly operated by D. J. McCarthy, has been taken over by Max Bloom and Son, who were in business in Eureka, California, for twenty-three years, recently selling out their business in that city.

While passing through Daly City, Mr. Bloom and his son met an old friend, Mr. William E. Merrit, who had known them in Eureka, and upon learning that they were looking for a location, Mr. Merrit advised them that they need look no farther, and with his advice and assistance they began looking for a location, finally succeeding in obtaining the lease of the store building at 6274 Mission street, next to the P. G. & E. office.

Max Bloom and Son intend to carry a complete line of men's, ladies' and children's furnishings, and will also have the exclusive agency for Endicott-Johnson Corp. shoes. The store is being remodeled and the opening date will be announced later.

Margaret Nittel was guest of honor at a birthday party given last Monday afternoon by her mother, Mrs. C. Nittel, of Peoria street, in honor of her seventh birthday. The afternoon was spent playing games and dancing, after which refreshments were served. Margaret received a number of lovely gifts. The guests were Alice Ross, Dorothy Ross, Louise Nittel, Pauline Nittel, Olga Turke, Doris Barret, Margaret Cramer, and Margaret Nittel.

On Wednesday, July 3, the work of the fiscal year was brought to a close by the writer. As he contemplated the little part he had played in its important events he was not entirely satisfied, for in addition to the triumphs that had been won there were so many more that might have been accomplished.

Still, there was much over which to feel grateful. The school graduations had been pronounced successes. Never before were there so many graduates; they made a fine appearance and their representatives expressed themselves without hesitation. Socially and fraternally he had been accorded a generous share of appreciation. At many banquets his remarks seemed to satisfy nearly all.

In the famous presidential campaign he upheld his party's leader with all the forces he could muster, and smiled through the disappointment of defeat, buoyed up with the thought that a great benefit to his country had been wrought.

In a business way, for him, the year was one of unusual success. The balances are highly encouraging and the way his patrons have maintained their promises has increased his faith in humanity.

All such activities, as the previous paragraphs indicate, tend to exhaust the physical powers of even the most enterprising, and the writer felt the wear and tear. He was glad when the respite came.

When his friend and carefully advising attorney, W. H. Clay, the only lawyer of Daly City, called for him, with his new Hupmobile, he was enthusiastic over the prospects of a grand outing.

With high hopes of pleasure and recuperation, he took the comfortable seat beside the driver, and after "Jerry on the job" had fully charged the machine the trip had begun. The Hupmobile seemed to partake of the happy spirit of its occupants. In a twinkling of time it had carried them, almost magically, through the traffic of the city and rested silently on a Golden Gate ferry, as if it had done nothing.

Having crossed the bay it appeared to exult on the improved roads and in the warm sunshine. Like a bird it seemed to fly along without effort.

When the travelers visioned the pall of smoke rising from Mt. Tamalpais, and the vicious flames licking up its side destroying much of its charm, involuntarily a feeling of sadness came over them, for every foot of where the devouring element was raging was dear to them. All roads going toward the scene of the fire were blocked by San Francisco police officers, so it was necessary to hurry by, but pity over the great loss did not pass away so soon.

The ride through marvelous Marin and the Valley of the Moon is always delightful on account of the numerous scenes of beauty, but this year it is decidedly more so on account of the recently perfected highway. The paving is smoother, many dangerous curves are no more and the way is wider, thanks to the wise expenditure of the ample funds arising from the gasoline tax, which no one feels.

The Hupmobile rejoiced over the opportunity presented. It longed to show what it could do. If Mr. Clay would let go, how it would overcome distance! Needless to say at times the driver favored the inclination a little and Mark Twain's fast ride behind a horse was recalled when the telegraph poles seemed like the teeth of a fine tooth comb, and the great humorist never described what an automobile might do.

Petaluma and Burbank's city were soon left behind and at Healdsburg a cool restaurant was found and a dainty luncheon was enjoyed. How fortunate it is that such places accommodate the highway tourists!

Then on again through the land of the grape to Cloverdale and by the ruins of McCray's, where so many were wont to linger and partake of the rare hospitality of Pop McCray, who still lives, recalling the prominent guests he has entertained, but his famous place is gone.

From McCray's, after winding up the mountain and down again, always on high, near Hopland one reaches a gateway bearing the invitation "Duncan Springs," and there the highway is forsaken and you climb a primitive but safe road, for a short distance, and you have arrived at one of the most comfortable locations in the land of recuperation.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell, the managers, welcome each guest with good will. Mrs. Taylor, the cashier, sees that you are assigned a comfortable resting place. In the briefest time you are made to feel actually at home.

At once you begin to accustom yourself to the surroundings. You find the bath-house where "Charley the factotum" holds forth, and who ever partakes of the hot soda water

Rail Birds

THE EAGLES NEST

On Tuesday evening the good will committee of twenty-five members of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie No. 1848, Fraternal Order of Eagles, visited with the San Mateo Aerie. During the meeting an initiation was held in which ten members took the pledge of membership.

At the meeting an informal banquet was held, and San Mateo must be congratulated for their knowing how to put it on. Talks were made by the State Organizer, Brothers Pease, Bolger, Heim, Adams, Rohdenberg, Kennedy, and Bodien, of Daly City, Brothers Schottler and Kevin, of Redwood City, and the Worthy President of San Mateo. A committee was appointed to accompany Daly City and Redwood City to Half Moon Bay on next Monday night.

Don't forget the Eagles picnic on Sunday, July 28, at Walker's Park, San Mateo.

Any member out of employment should get in touch with Officer Heim, and any firm needing help of any kind can obtain same by placing their wants with Brother Heim.

baths, under his direction, finds age and its ills forced to forego its demands for years. When you see the bright-eyed, lively, white-headed boys playing shuffleboard with the enthusiasm of youth, you have ocular evidence that there is something in it.

A few steps more and you are at the spring-house, where you drink copiously of the magnesium water, as everyone does, for this has the quality of finding the poisons that engender pains and doing away with them. The spring-house has a dance floor and every evening the young and the old, all just the same, dance together to exemplify freedom from pain.

Beyond the spring-house you walk along romantic pathways, under shady trees, over the rustic bridges, crossing gullies where water flows. On the way it is not unusual to startle a wild deer, not much afraid, but instinctively disinclined to trust you. Ere long you arrive at the soda spring pouring forth its effervescent offering so palatable you desire to drink even though you have no thirst. Around the soda spring everything is beautiful. Seats are there so that you may rest and dream, tell stories or listen to others. It is so charming there that many never go any farther. Those who resist the spell may travel on, over the hill, to the sulphur spring, and try its waters. A few of the more daring may go onward and upward, until the top of Mt. Duncan has been reached. It is somewhat higher than Mr. Duncan. When you reach the top you have, no matter which way you look, a magnificent view, and gentle breezes will fan your brow. It is strange that so few feel the need of reaching the top.

When you have enjoyed the pathways, the sunshine and the waters, and the bell rings, you wait not for a second call, but hasten to the dining room, finding it clean, cool and well lighted. You are no sooner seated than a dainty waitress is at your side, telling softly the menu, and you feel like taking all of it. What you do order is so well cooked and savory you wonder that so much can be given for so little.

Three times a day the guests hear the bell that calls to the dining room with real pleasure. Everyone eats of the wholesome food without fear of consequences. There is no need of such dread for the waters and the freedom from responsibility bring back the health of youth.

On the evening of the Fourth the spring-house was decorated with green branches and the national colors. A very good program of songs, story-telling, recitations, and of course a speech, was arranged and carried out

WILDCATS TAMED
BY JEFERSONIANS

The greatly improved Jefferson All Stars won two hard fought baseball games last week. They traveled across the bay and celebrated the Fourth of July by taming the San Anselmo Wildcats by a score of 11 to 2, and continued their winning streak by defeating the Bert Harte Natives on Sunday, 6 to 5, on the high school diamond.

The Jeffersonians played a bang-up game on the fast San Anselmo diamond. Among the large number of good plays was Lagomarsino's long running catch in the first inning that prevented a run from scoring; and Aiello's sensational bit of robbery in the sixth, when he caught a fly along the foul line that looked like a sure hit.

Gene Keagle was in rare form, allowing only six hits, four of which were of the infield variety, and striking out ten batsmen, while his team-mates collected eighteen safeties for a total of twenty-seven bases. Every member of the team obtained at least one hit, while Dan Modena and C. Linhares collected four hits out of five trips to the plate, leading the bat attack.

The Bert Harte Natives appeared to be just another team Sunday when the All Stars crossed the plate six times in the first four innings. But after the smoke had cleared away at the end of the game, they were only one run ahead. The local team was out-hit in this game, but their fine base running offset this disadvantage. Only two men were left on bases.

Keagle ascended the mound again in this game and was not expected to show much stuff, due to his pitching on Thursday, but he struck out thirteen Natives with sharp breaking curves and blinding speed.

The visitors scored three runs in the sixth inning after two men were out, and had the tying and winning runs on third and second base in the ninth, but Gene struck out the last two men, leaving them stranded.

TEAM KEEPS UP
WINNING STREAK

The Daly City Merchants' baseball team kept up their winning streak over the week end. On the Fourth of July they trounced the W. & I. Lunch team, 10 to 2. The game was played on the Seventh and Bryant street diamond, and was featured by the heavy hitting of the Merchants.

Sunday, on the San Mateo city park diamond, the Merchants defeated the fast Darcy's Sport Shop team of San Mateo in a game that was a thriller from start to finish. The Merchants threatened in every inning, but were able to put over only two runs, which were more than enough to win, as Pitcher Dick Randall was in great form, allowing but seven scattered hits. This young man is sure going great. This was his third victory in eight days for the Merchants. A return game is to be played by these two teams, and it promises to draw a large crowd.

BOARD CONSIDERS BRIDGE PROBLEMS

Movement for the construction of a new bridge on the coastside highway at Pescadero to replace the present structure, built many years ago, was launched at last Monday's meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors.

On the recommendation of Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, County Engineer George Kneese was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for a new concrete bridge over the Pescadero creek. Further action will be taken when these are submitted to the board at a later date. The bridge now in use was constructed many years ago and has been repaired by the county on numerous occasions.

The contract for the construction of the bridge over the San Francisco creek between San Mateo and Santa Clara county was awarded to Collins & Martin, of San Francisco. The firm's figure of $27,325 was the lowest of fourteen bids opened at the previous meeting of the supervisors. Bids were opened simultaneously at a meeting of the Santa Clara supervisors at San Jose.

Under the terms of the contract, Santa Clara county will provide funds for payment of the first half of the cost of the bridge, and San Mateo county will pay its share later in the year. Provision for funds for this expenditure will be made in budgets of both counties. The name of the Stanford University, which at first was to finance the project, does not appear in the contract.

The bridge is to be finished before the date of the Stanford-California "big game" this year.

Resolutions were passed calling an election to name directors of the Belmont city water district, turning sewer easements, filed with the county, back to the north Palo Alto sewer district, and calling for bids of the sale of $17,000 bonds of the Los Llanos school district, and $15,000 bonds of the Belmont school district.

Approval was given the County Chamber of Commerce budget of $16,440.

Because there has been an attendance of less than five pupils at the San Gregorio school, the board moved to suspend that institution.

CALVARY MISSION VACATION
CHURCH SCHOOL POPULAR

The third week of Vacation Church School at Calvary Mission is over, and only one more week remains. All the boys and girls, as well as the teachers, say that this school is the best ever. Parents of the children will be surprised when they see the excellent work that is being produced by the little ones.

Special attractions have been provided each week. Rev. Stevenson of Grace Presbyterian church entertained the children on two successive Tuesday mornings with his drawings and illustrated lectures.

Everyone is welcome on closing night, July 19. Come and see what has been happening.

Next Sunday Rev. Mintz preaches over KPO at 9:45. A radio will be installed in the church for the occasion. After the Sunday school session the congregation will walk to the Black Hills and have a picnic lunch and short preaching service. A fine program has been arranged and the public is invited to share in the good time.

POPULAR RESIDENT WILL VISIT SCENES OF YOUTH

William Haerdter, who recently sold The Relish Bakery to Mr. Chris Munz, will leave the first of next week for Chicago. After a visit in that city he will sail for Germany, where he will visit relatives, it being his first visit to his birthplace in twenty-seven years. Mr. Haerdter, who is one of the best known men of the district, wishes to extend his thanks for the wonderful way he has been treated since coming to Daly City, in the early days, and to assure his friends that he appreciates their loyalty during the past years. Upon the conclusion of his visit, he will return to Daly City to make his home.

BLESSINGS IN DISGUISE
TO BE THEME OF PASTOR

"What Moses learned from an Eagle" will be the theme of the sermon Sunday evening at 8, at the Grace Presbyterian church. It is true that all things work together for good to them that love God. This subject has been discussed from the time of Job and will be discussed again Sunday by Rev. John R. Stevenson. The pastor announces that the local church will enter the Loyalty campaign which is being launched by the churches of San Francisco after the vacation period.

"FIRPO" TAVENER HITS BALL HARD

Tiny Indian Shortstop Banks on Perfect Timing.

His nicknames are "Firpo" and "Power House." Who? Johnny Tavener, the little 130-pound shortstop of the Cleveland Indians. Why? Because he hits the ball further than any other big league ball player of his size.

Tavener never has been a .300 hitter in any league and yet opposing pitchers rate him as a dangerous batsman for the little fellow comes through in a lot of pinches with extra base hits.

When a major league scout visits the sticks to give some well-touted minor league slugger the once over, he takes the fences into consideration. If they are close in, he easily perceives that the homers that Jim Clouter drives over the barriers or the doubles he hits against them might be easy outs in a big league park. But, if Jim Clouter is hitting a lot of triples, he knows that Jim is worth trying out.

Well, little Johnny Tavener always has had a penchant for making triples. Last year, for instance, he gathered fourteen.

"How does he hit a ball so far?" many a fan has exclaimed when the 130-pound Indian swatted a ball to deep right or center for three bases. "Where does he get his power?"

It is not power. It is perfect timing; and opposing pitchers will tell you that Johnny times his drives better than most of his rival batsmen. If he were twenty or thirty pounds heavier and could add the power to his timing ability he would be a consistent .300 hitter.

And to think the peppery lightweight started out as a catcher when he was a semipro in Dayton. But, when some one told him he was too small to be a backstop, he shifted to the infield. Along came Zinn Beck, then managing the Columbia (S. C.) team, and signed him.

Johnny did not take the offer seriously, figuring that Beck could not be much of a judge of ball players if he wanted to give a trial to a boy who weighed but 125 pounds, as Johnny did then. But he devoted himself to adding avoirdupois and actually weighed 133 when he reported, and when the season opened he tipped the scales at 140 pounds.

Johnson Won't Pitch

SOME BEST CAKES

A good cake is a joy for as long as it lasts. The proper beating of the mixture before folding in the egg whites makes a fine grained and tender cake.

Pineapple Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of shortening, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar (sift in gradually), add two well beaten egg yolks. Sift together three and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and two and one-third cupfuls of flour; alternate the flour in mixing with the creamed butter and two-thirds of a cupful of milk. Beat well, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two layers. For filling—put three cupfuls of confectioner's sugar in a bowl with one-fourth cupful of cream and beat until smooth. Add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and one tablespoonful of finely minced pineapple. Spread the cake with melted butter, sprinkle with a tablespoonful or two of chopped pineapple and cover with the filling. Use it for icing the top. This will make a delicious dessert using whipped cream over the cake. It may be baked in a sheet and cut into squares if preferred.

Butterscotch Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter with one cupful of sugar, add two well beaten egg yolks, add two-thirds of a cupful of milk alternately with two cupfuls of flour sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Beat well, add a flavoring of vanilla and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in two layer tins. Ice the cake with the following: Two cupfuls of light sirup, one-half cupful of butter, one-half cupful of milk. Boil until it forms a soft ball in cold water. Cool without stirring. When almost cold spread on the cake. Decorate the top with nut meats.

Date Kisses.—Beat two egg whites until stiff, add one cupful of powdered sugar, one cupful of broken nut meats and one cupful of chopped dates. Mix lightly and drop by teaspoonfuls on to a greased baking sheet. Bake about fifteen minutes in a moderate oven. This makes about thirty cakes.

A delicious filling which has a name which speaks for itself is Gentlemen's Favorite.—Grate a tart apple—a ripe duchess is one of the best. Add sugar to taste and one egg white unbeaten. Beat until creamy and spread on layers and top of cake.

Summer Foods. There is no fruit more appetizing than fresh ripe currants. Sugar them well and serve as a cocktail, as a breakfast dish or as dessert.

Currants With Ice Cream.—Sugar the ripe fruit, let stand a half hour then crush them through a ricer. Put a tablespoonful of currants into a sherbet glass, add a layer of ice cream and finish with more currants.

Banana Date and Nut Salad.—Cut six balls from ripe but firm bananas for each salad, roll in chopped nuts. Stuff dates (using three or four) with the pieces left after making the balls. Arrange on lettuce and serve with Maple Sirup Dressing.—Heat one-fourth cupful of sirup to the boiling point, pour over three egg yolks, beating all the time, cook one minute; add one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, and just before serving add one-half cupful of cream, beaten stiff.

Icebox Pudding.—Take one pound of vanilla wafers, one large can of pineapple, one cupful of nut meats, one-half pound of butter and four eggs. Cream the butter with one-half cupful of sugar, then add the eggs one at a time and beat twenty minutes. Put the nut meats and the wafers through a meat grinder and make alternate layers of crumbs with the pineapple and the creamed filling until all is used. Place in ice box 12 hours before using. Serve with whipped cream.

Orange Souffle.—Cover one-half box of gelatin with one-half cupful of cold water; after ten minutes add one-half cupful of boiling water and stir until dissolved. Mix two cupfuls of orange juice, two cupfuls of sugar, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Beat six egg yolks to a cream and add with the gelatin mixture to the sirup. Put into a basin, stand in ice water and stir until it thickens. The juice of two lemons improves the dish; add one quart of cream and freeze.

Pecan Pie.—Take one cupful of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of corn sirup, one-half cupful of butter, three unbeaten eggs and one cupful of pecans. Measure the butter and melt. Mix the sugar, eggs and sirup, add each egg separately, beating well after each addition, then add butter. Pour into a rich pastry crust and bake in a very hot oven to bake the crust, then bake slowly for nearly two hours. If using gas lower the heat after the quick baking to just a head of flame.

Maple Sirup Dressing.—Heat one-fourth cupful of sirup to the boiling point, pour over three egg yolks, beating all the time, cook one minute; add one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, and just before serving add one-half cupful of cream, beaten stiff.

Grass-Hook Might Help to Mend Broken Heart

"Germany paid the Allies a billion and a half marks in reparations last year," said Representative Homer Hoch, of Kansas. "That's a lot of money, it's money that Germany can ill spare, but the only sympathy that goes out to her in her hard luck is like the feed man's."

"A feed man went to a neighbor's home one morning, knocked, and said: 'Is Jake in?'"

"'Goodness, no!' said Mrs. Jake. 'Haven't you heard? Poor Jake passed out this morning at half past three.'"

"'Well, well, well! That sure is bad news. Why, I didn't even know old Jake was sick.'"

"'It was very sudden. Very sudden, indeed.'"

"'Dear me! I can hardly bear it. I'm heartbroken, to tell you the truth. By the way, did Jake say anything about that grass hook he borrowed from me, before he died?'"—Detroit Free Press.

Cosden Cobb, the millionaire tobacco planter of Kentucky, said on disembarking from the Berengaria in New York:

"Oh," he said, "you mustn't call me King Alfonso any more. My name is Segundo de Rivera now."

Cow to the Rescue

Being chased by a bear and rescued by a cow was the experience of Mrs. Fred Howard, of Straight, Pa. She was fishing near her home when a bear and her four cubs appeared. Mrs. Howard's screams attracted her husband and also a cow, which gave chase to the bear. The cubs made no effort to escape and climbed an apple tree.

Value of Resistance

No doubt a world in which matter never got out of place and became dirt, in which iron had no flaws and wood no cracks, in which gardens had no weeds and food grew ready cooked, in which clothes never wore out and washing was as easy as advertisements describe it, in which the right word was not hard to find and rules had no exceptions, and things never went wrong, would be a much easier place to live in. But for purposes of training and development it would be worth nothing at all. It is the resistance that puts us on our mettle; it is the conquest of the reluctant stuff that educates the worker. I wish you enough difficulties to keep you and make you strong and skillful.

Roads Do It

The average daily run of a tourist has increased from 100 miles ten years ago to 234 miles today. Better highways, motor car improvements, more adequate sign posting, improved motor facilities and the raising of speed limits are factors which have helped increase this average.

PERSHING'S PARSING

Ability to parse a sentence better than a fellow contestant for an appointment to West Point gave to United States its greatest living soldier, General John J. Pershing, according to a story recently published.

Back in 1881, when three Missouri boys appeared before the examining board which was to select an appointee to fill a vacancy at the United States Military Academy, Pershing was one of the three. He and another boy, named Mallory, were so evenly matched that the board was hard put to decide between them.

As a final test the board proposed for parsing the sentence: "We are as near heaven by sea as by land." Pershing did a perfect job of parsing, while Mallory fell down, so Pershing got the appointment, was graduated from West Point, rose to high military rank and eventually became commander of the A. E. F.

His rival, J. D. Mallory, has had a modest but useful career, and is still living as a rural school teacher near Purdin, Missouri, having taught all these years. Possibly he could beat Pershing in parsing that same sentence today.

A salesman thinks you are easy when he talks of easy payments.

THE USEFUL HOBO

In the minds of most persons, the terms hobo, tramp and bum have practically the same meaning. But this idea is wrong, according to M. Leinen, agent for a large New York employment company, who declares that he has hired as many as 133,000 Bowerly hoboes for railroad work in a single year, and says they were "a fine bunch of men."

Mr. Leinen describes the difference between the three classes mentioned somewhat as follows: A hobo is a traveling worker; a tramp is a traveling non-worker; a bum is a stationary non-worker. While the three intermingled in the large cities during the winter, and the classes are not strictly defined, when the opportunity comes the hobo is willing to work, while the others are not.

Hoboes travel from place to place seeking reasonable employment, such as harvesting, railroad and other construction work, as common laborers, so they fill a real place in the country's economic system. While they are not always exemplary in morals and conduct, they are honest and industrious, as a rule.

And they have a sense of pride as well. The hobo wants to be known as a hobo, and he is insulted to be called a tramp or a bum.

GOVERNMENT METHODS

President Hoover is said to be strongly in favor of readjusting the functions of the various government departments and bureaus, so that related activities may be grouped together, instead of being scattered all over the national capital.

Probably the best illustration of the present chaotic condition of affairs was given by Mr. Hoover himself some time ago, when he said:

"The question of governmental aids to navigation is not by any means one of the principal functions of our government, but it must be a sore trial to the hardy mariner. He must obtain his domestic charts from the Department of Commerce, his foreign charts from the Navy Department, and his nautical almanac from the Naval Observatory—and he will in some circumstances get sailing directions from the Army."

"In a fog he may get radio signals from both the Navy and Commerce, and listen to fog horns and look for lights and buoys provided him by Commerce; if he sinks, his life is saved by the Treasury. He will anchor at the direction of the Army, who will rely upon the Treasury to enforce their will. His boilers and lifeboats are inspected by the Department of Commerce; his crew is certificated by one bureau in Commerce, signed off in the presence of another, and inspected at sailing time by the Treasury, and on arrival by the Department of Labor."

This is but a sample of government methods that evidently need correcting.

DRIFT TO APARTMENTS

Is the one-family home giving way to the apartment house as a place of habitation? A survey covering 302 cities of more than 25,000 population, recently made by the Department of Labor, indicates that there is a well defined trend in that direction. It discloses that 53 per cent of city dwellers live in apartments, as contrasted with only 24 per cent eight years ago.

Commenting on this situation, A. E. Dickinson, president of the Indiana Limestone Company, observes that in both apartment house and single-family home construction there is a marked improvement noticeable in the permanency of the structures being erected, and adds: "There is no longer any place in the general building program for flimsy construction."

In view of the staggering fire losses which occur each year, involving also an appalling loss of life, the tendency toward better construction methods is an encouraging sign. From the standpoint of safety alone, to say nothing of the greater economy in the long run, every class of building should be made as nearly fire-proof as practicable.

It is possible that the drift to apartments is due in some measure to the belief that their construction is such as to afford greater safety to their occupants.

PEDANTS ARE REBUKED

Teachers of English who cling to all the ancient rules were given a thorough-going rebuke in a recent lecture by Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, one of the greatest living authorities and editor of a leading dictionary.

Among other things, the doctor countenanced ending a sentence with a preposition, approved the split infinitive, testified to the forcefulness of a moderate amount of slang, and otherwise played havoc with many pet traditions of the pedants.

The English language, like all others, is still in the making, and will continue to change and grow. Spelling, pronunciation, grammar and everything pertaining to the language have undergone many modifications through the centuries. The rules and usages sanctioned by the most virile writers and speakers will always constitute the highest authority in any particular period.

It is important to learn the rules, but it is often as important to know when to break them for the sake of clarity and vigor of speech.

EX-SLAVE REUNION

Among the many conventions and gatherings of the summer, none will have a greater touch of human interest than the eighteenth annual ex-slave reunion to be held in Birmingham on July 15 and 16.

It will not be a large gathering, as reunions go, but there will be more than one hundred former negro slaves in attendance, their ages ranging from 90 to 118 years, and they will come from practically all the Southern states.

Each year a large number of white people are invited to attend these reunions and partake of an old-fashioned outdoor dinner, where separate tables are provided for the white guests. Rev. J. A. Bryan, an aged and greatly beloved white minister of Birmingham, will deliver an address, as he has done for a number of years, and there will be much music, including singing of all the favorite negro spirituals by the ex-slaves themselves.

As is the case with reunions of veterans of the Civil war, these ex-slave reunions must cease within a few years, when the last of those who participated in the stirring events of the 60's shall have passed away.

The ex-slave reunion is financed by the Community Chest of Birmingham, whose action is added proof that worthy negroes of the South are treated with consideration by their white neighbors.

MIND AND MARKETS

Even a hard-headed business man is influenced to a great extent by his emotions, and these emotions are often a vital factor in effecting a trade. Therefore, it is becoming recognized that a knowledge of human psychology is essential equipment for an economist who seeks to understand the forces behind price fluctuations in commodity and stock markets.

For this reason, A. W. Westel, noted economist and president of the Westel Market Bureau, is advocating the establishment of courses in market psychology at universities which offer extensive business training.

"Prices are human conclusions," says Mr. Westel, "and the convergence of two minds is necessary to effect a trade. I feel that in an understanding of human reactions lies as much the basis for stock market trends as is provided in the actual statistical figures governing them. There are situations where applied psychology does more in explaining them than rows of figures."

Doubtless many unexplained fluctuations in commodity and stock markets are due to obscure mental forces which the layman is unable to comprehend. In any event, Mr. Westel's idea is interesting, and its development may hold great possibilities for business men of the future.

Neighbors are so meddlesome. When Charles Vaughn of Evansville, Indiana, was peacefully supporting two wives on $35 a week, the neighbors up and had him arrested for bigamy.

W. A. Wise of Kansas, alleged to have five wives living, again proves that there isn't much in a name.

One trouble with "the last word in style" is that it doesn't stay that way.

Some careless woman dropped her wooden leg with shoe and stocking in the road near St. Louis, where it was found by a taxi-driver. She has probably missed it by this time.

The reason some rich people are stingy is also the reason they are rich.

If you want time to pass rapidly, just sign a good-sized note due in thirty days.

NEWS FOR BANDITS

Some good news came out of the town of Moore, Oklahoma, a little hamlet near Oklahoma City, last week. That is, it was good news for law-abiding folk, but bad news for bandits.

When two suspicious-looking characters were observed riding about the town, bank officials caused armed guards to be stationed in a back room. Shortly the suspects entered and ordered Otto Hayes, bookkeeper, to "stick 'em up." Hayes didn't do anything of the kind. He knocked one down as the guards got into action, killing one bandit and perhaps fatally wounding the other.

Bank robberies usually show a decided falling off after an object lesson of this sort. It is the only kind of lesson that professional criminals can understand.

successfully. The versatile Mr. Peters delivered his dialect songs. The gifted waitresses sang several classical selections. A number of the guests added choice parts. The chairman of the evening cracked his merry jokes and the writer being called upon made the speech. Best of all, the audience was so appreciative they paid attention and made the celebration a real success.

The days were very warm, as everyone wished them to be. Mr. Clay was unselfish with his machine and thereby became well-known. On the fifth he took a party of five interesting people to Ukiah and made a visit to Vichy Springs. On the seventh he crossed the river and ascended the grade into Lake county, to the crest, from which an excellent view of wonderful Clear Lake was obtained. On each trip, everyone was grateful to the kind and safe driver. The Hummobile never complained. As a reward he gave it a generous allowance of Ethyl gas.

All too soon the few days were spent and it was necessary to return. On Sunday morning, after church, farewells were said and it was like parting from those who had known you long and well.

Returning, the Russian river was crossed at Hopland, and the Pieta road was followed to McCrays. This road winds along the Russian river, a good sized body of water, and all the way it presents pleasing views, the most entrancing to Mr. Clay being a disciple of Isaac Walton landing a trout.

He was so carried away, he had to stop and try his luck. He had all his fishing gear with him. That's his only weakness. The rod was made ready. The line was put on. The hooks were attached and the bait was affixed. Finding a place where trout might lurk, for more than an hour he cast his line industriously. His companion watched and waited and hoped that his friends' ambition would be realized. After patience was almost at an end, Mr. Clay said, "I've got one," and sure enough he landed a good sized rainbow trout, and was well pleased. That important event happened six miles south of Hopland, a location that will see Mr. Clay again.

From the scene of the fishing no more stops were made and the Golden Gate ferry caused no waiting. It was ready to take the travelers across upon their approach, and they were home at an early hour.

The story of this outing is told at length to please those who spent their Fourth in some other way, and, especially, for our friends.

ESTABLISH IDENTITY OF MAN RUN DOWN ON THE FOURTH

Identity of the man killed shortly after midnight on July 4, on Mission street near Crocker avenue, was established the next day. The unfortunate man was Daniel Zehnder, of 41 Theresa street, San Francisco. Emil J. Breiling, who makes his home at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, the driver of the automobile, explained to Chief of Police Doyle that the man apparently became confused while crossing the street, changed his direction, and that Breiling's attempts to avert the accident were unavailing. Breiling was released on his own recognizance to appear on a manslaughter charge. He is in the loan brokerage business in Oakland.

DELEGATES REPORT TO LOCAL PARLOR

The delegates who represented El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., at the forty-third annual convention of the order presented an interesting report of the proceedings at the last regular meeting of the parlor. One of the features of the report was an account of the dinner given in honor of Emma Lou Humphrey, P. G. P. The dinner this year was held in the beautiful Spanish room of the Casa del Rey hotel, overlooking the Spanish gardens, the hostesses being the delegates from Frutivale Parlor No. 177 and San Juan Batista Parlor No. 179. Forty guests were seated at tables decorated with red, white and yellow flowers, the favors being dolls dressed in the ruffled skirts of long ago. The guest of honor was presented with a pair of silver candlesticks by the delegates from the nine parlors instituted by her.

The surprise of the evening came with the announcement from Mrs. Humphrey that each year she would present one of the parlors instituted by her with a gift of silver, until all of the nine parlors had been taken care of. El Carmelo drew first and received a beautiful silver goblet, fittingly inscribed.

Speeches and good wishes for many more years of these get-together dinners brought this pleasant affair to a close, all expressing sincere thanks and appreciation to the hostesses.

The drill team of El Carmelo Parlor will sponsor a whist party and dance on Wednesday evening, July 31, at Masonic Hall. You are cordially invited to attend and are assured of having a pleasant evening.

The next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, July 17, at Masonic Hall, at which time plans for the installation of officers will be discussed.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

Four persons were seriously burned or injured Thursday evening of last week when they were pinned underneath an automobile owned and driven by E. D. Galliano, of 238 Los Banos avenue, which overturned and caught fire after colliding with another machine at Plymouth avenue and Farallones streets, Oceanview. They were taken to the Mission Emergency hospital.

The injured were Mrs. Angelina Delfina, aged 53, of St. Charles avenue, San Francisco, burned on the left hand, left leg and about the head; Miss Angelian Delfina, aged 21, both legs burned seriously; Miss Susie Delfina, aged 13, possibly fractured pelvis, cuts and bruises; James Vernazzo, aged 8, of same address, badly bruised head and lacerated ear. Mr. Galliano escaped injury.

The machine was totally wrecked. The driver of the other machine gave the name of Herbert Gillian. He left the scene of the accident before the police arrived.

AGED PURISSIMA MAN VICTIM OF WILD DRIVER

Herman Jordan, aged Purissima pioneer, was a hit and run victim last Saturday night. Mr. Jordan, since his retirement as a farmer, has been living at the Purissima hotel, and paid almost nightly visits to his friend A. Lucchesi, who lives less than 200 yards north on the coast road. Jordan left the Lucchesi home at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night to return to the hotel and had gone less than half the distance when he was struck. Friends say he always walked in the grass on the left side of the road, facing oncoming cars. The car that struck him was going south, as he was, and must have swerved far out of its path to strike Jordan.

His moans attracted Lucchesi half an hour after, and he was taken to Mills Memorial hospital. Doctors found he had a broken shoulder and a broken leg. He was unable to give a description of the car that hit him.

WAVES AT FRIENDS AND LANDS IN THE HOSPITAL

Thomas Keyes, ship-yard worker of San Francisco, is at the Community hospital with a fractured shoulder, bad cuts of the face and head, and a possible fracture of the skull as the result of an automobile accident last Sunday on the Half Moon Bay grade. Keyes, at the wheel of his automobile, waved at friends. His car went over an embankment and plunged thirty feet. Three others in the car were uninjured.

Fire Chief Severely Burned
Fire Chief Frank Fetter of Half Moon Bay is nursing severe burns about the face and hands as the result of two fires in his district early last Sunday morning. Two residences were burned and a third damaged. The two houses burned were on the ranch property of Marsh & Cunha, peninsula feed and fuel firm, two miles north of Half Moon Bay.

R. B. Cashion, of Westlake avenue, returned home last Monday after visiting his father in Tennessee. He reports having had a wonderful trip. Mr. and Mrs. Cashion and the twins spent the Fourth of July in Sargent, Nebraska. Mrs. Cashion and the twins remained for a longer visit with her sisters.

MUST HAVE NEW OPERATOR'S CARD

Motorists will be subject to arrest for failure to possess a new operator's license cards during the period of renewal ordered by Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles. A reasonable time will be allowed after August 14 for those who must renew to comply with the law. This is the message issued to motorists by the California State Automobile Association, which secured from Chief Snook an accurate statement of the terms of his order following the many conflicting reports which have lead to a widespread misunderstanding.

The renewal order was issued by Chief Snook under the new provision of the California Vehicle Act, which becomes operative August 14. Under the terms of this provision, Snook's order is that all operator's licenses issued prior to January 1, 1927, will be voided at midnight Wednesday, August 14. Motorists thereafter will be required to obtain new operators' cards.

Not only will a reasonable time be allowed for motorists to comply with the order, but the closing date of the time allowed has not yet been determined by the division. The final day for renewal will be announced by Chief Snook at a later date, and sufficiently in advance to warn all those who have not made application. Police departments in various cities, Division of Motor Vehicle offices and the headquarters of the various county squads will be open to motorists during the period allotted for renewing licenses.

The motorist will be required to answer certain questions indicating his knowledge of the rules of the road, and other provisions of the California Vehicle Act. Examination will include tests of hearing and eyesight and of ability to understand highway warning and direction of signs. An actual demonstration of ability to exercise ordinary and reasonable control in the operation of a motor vehicle by driving under the supervision of an examining officer may be required in the discretion of the examining officer.

Under the new amendment operators' cards will automatically expire, in the future, after two years. There will be no charge for the issuance of new cards or examination.

POKER PLAYERS GET IN BAD

Johnson, of Daly City, sitting for Judge Edward Farrell at South San Francisco last Saturday morning, imposed a six months suspended sentence on the eight Mexicans caught playing stud poker by the South San Francisco police. The suspended sentence was given on condition that the eight Mexicans leave South San Francisco at once. Isidoro Aguarria, at whose home the gamblers were playing, was also ordered to leave town.

STORY FROM THE START

Athol Meldrum, young Scotsman, starts out to seek his fortune. He arrives at San Francisco practically broke and meets a fellow adventurer whom he dubs the Prodigal. With Jim Hubbard they join the gold rush to Alaska. On the boat Athol meets Berna, a young woman traveling with her grandfather and a hard looking couple named Winkenstein who figure as her aunt and uncle. The grandfather, Berna says, is obsessed with the idea of gaining wealth in Alaska. Landing at Skagway, Athol's party at once takes the trail. In a snowslide on the Chilcoot trail, which Berna and her companions had taken, hundreds of lives are lost. Fearful for Berna's safety, Athol hastens to the scene. He finds the old man dead and learns that Berna is prostrated. Madam Winkenstein refuses to let him see the girl, but he leaves a letter for her. At Bennett, Berna comes to Athol, confesses her love, and begs him to marry her, to save her from the harsh fate she foresees. He is unwilling to take such a decisive step, and tells her they must wait. Some days afterward Berna tells Athol Madam Winkenstein plans to sell her to "Black Jack" Locasto, millionaire miner of evil reputation. While realizing how greatly he loves the girl, Meldrum, in a mixture of emotions, flinches from the idea of immediate marriage, and they agree to wait a year, though Berna is fearful. Reaching the gold fields, Athol and his party find the claims all taken and the camp crowded with idle men.

I will always remember my first day in the gold camp. All was grotesque, makeshift, haphazard. Back of the main street lay the red-light quarter, and behind it again a swamp of negroes, the breeding place of fever and mosquito.

Till midnight I wandered up and down the long street; but there was no darkness, no lull in its clamorous life.

I was looking for Berna. My heart hungered for her; my eyes ached for her; my mind was so full of her there seemed no room for another single thought. But it was like looking for a needle in a strawstack to find her in that seething multitude. So with spirits steadily sinking zeroedwards I waited.

After a session of debate, we decided to reserve our rights to stake till a good chance offered. It was a bitter awakening. Like all the rest we had expected to get ground that was gold from the grass-roots down. But there was work to be had, and we would not let ourselves be disheartened.

The Jam-wagon had already deserted us. He was off up on Eldorado somewhere, shoveling dirt into a sluice-box for ten dollars a day. I made up my mind I would follow him. Jim also would get to work, while the Prodigal, we agreed, would look after our interests, and stake or buy a good claim.

The country was at the mercy of a gang of corrupt officials who were using the public offices for their own enrichment. Franchises were being given to the favorites of those in power, concessions sold, liquor permits granted, and abuses of every kind practiced on the free miner. All was venality, injustice and extortion.

"Say, boys, I guess I've done a slick piece of work," said the Prodigal with some satisfaction, as he entered our tent. "I've bought three whole outfit on the beach. Got them for 25 per cent less than the cost price in Seattle. I'll pull out 100 per cent on the deal. Now's the time to get in and buy from the quitters."

"It's too bad to take advantage of them," I suggested.

"Too bad nothing! That's business; your necessity, my opportunity. Oh, you'd never make a money-getter, my boy, this side of the millennium—and you Scotch, too."

I roamed the long street with an awful restless agony in my heart. Where was Berna, my girl, so precious now it seemed I had lost her? I visioned evils befalling her; I pierced my heart with dagger-thrusts of fear for her. Oh, if I only knew she was safe and well! If I could only find her! The land was a great symphony; she the haunting theme of it.

I bought a copy of the Nugget and went into the Sourdough restaurant to read it. As I lingered there sipping my coffee and perusing the paper indifferently, a paragraph caught my eye and made my heart glow with sudden hope.

Here was the item:

"One of the largest gambling plays that ever occurred in Dawson came off last night in the Malamute saloon. Jack Locasto of Eldorado, well known as one the Klondike's wealthiest claim-owners, Claude Terry and Charlie Haw were the chief actors in the game, which cost the first-named the sum of $19,000."

"Locasto came to Dawson from his claim yesterday. It is said that before leaving the Forks he lost a sum ranging in the neighborhood of $5,000. Last night he began playing in the Malamute with Haw and Terry in an effort, it is supposed, to recoup his losses at the Forks. The play continued nearly all night, and at the wind-up, Locasto, as stated above, was loser to the amount of $19,000."

Jack Locasto! Why had I not thought of him before? Surely if any one knew of the girl's whereabouts, it would be he. I determined I would ask him at once.

So I hastily finished my coffee and inquired of the waiter where I might find the Klondike king.

"Oh, Black Jack," he said: "well, at the Green Bay Tree, or the Tivoli, or the Monte Carlo. But there's a big poker game on and he's liable to be in it."

Once more I paraded the seething street. Women were everywhere, smoking cigarettes, laughing, chaffing, strolling in and out of the wide-open saloons. A libertine spirit was in the air, a madcap freedom, an effluence of disdainful sin.

I found myself by the stockade that surrounded the police reservation. One of the constables, a tall, slim Englishman with a refined manner, proved to me a friend in need.

"Yes," he said, in answer to my query, "I think I can find your man. He's downtown somewhere with some of the big sporting gents. Come on, we'll run him to earth."

After a short walk he pushed his way through a crowded doorway and I followed. It was the ordinary type of combined saloon and gambling joint. In a corner, presiding over a stud poker game, I was surprised to see Mosher.

My companion pointed to an inner room with a closed door.

"The Klondike kings are in there, hard at it. There's Black Jack and Stillwater Willie and Claude Terry and Charlie Haw."

Eagerly I looked in. All but Locasto were medium-sized men. Stillwater Willie was in evening dress. Haw was a sandy-haired man with shifty, uneasy eyes; Terry of a bulldog type, stocky and powerful. But it was Locasto who gripped and riveted my attention.

He was a massive man, heavy of limb and brutal in strength. There was a great spread to his shoulders and a conscious power in his every movement. He had a square, heavy chin, a grim, sneering mouth, a falcon nose, black eyes that were as cold as the water in a deserted shaft. His hair was raven dark, and his skin betrayed the Mexican strain in his blood. Above the others he towered, strikingly masterful, and I felt somehow the power that emanated from the man, the brute force, the remorseless purpose.

Then the waiter returned with a tray of drinks and the door was closed. "Well, you've seen him now," said my friend. "Your only plan, if you want to speak to him, is to wait till the game breaks up. By-by."

Oh, the weariness of that waiting! It was in the young morn when the game broke up. The inner door opened and Black Jack appeared.

In a moment I had followed and overtaken him.

"Mr. Locasto."

He turned and gave me a stare from his brooding eyes.

"Jack Locasto's my name," he answered carelessly.

I walked alongside him.

"Well, sir," I said, "my name's Meldrum, Athol Meldrum."

"Oh, I don't care what the devil your name is," he broke in petulantly. "Don't bother me just now. I'm tired. What do you want, work?"

"No," I said, "I just want a scrap of information. I came into the country with some Jews by the name of Winkenstein. I've lost track of them and I think you may be able to tell me where they are."

He was all attention now. He turned half round and scrutinized me with deliberate intensity. Then, like a flash, his rough manner changed. His eyes were bland, his voice smooth as cream.

"Winkenstein," he echoed reflectively, "Winkenstein; seems to me I do remember the name, but for the life of me I can't recall where. Was there a girl with them?"

"Yes," I said eagerly, "a young girl."

"A young girl, ah!" He seemed to reflect hard again. "Well, my friend, I'm afraid I can't help you. I remember noticing the party on the way in, but what became of them I can't think. Well, good-night, or good-morning rather. This is my hotel."

He had half entered when he paused and turned to me. His face was urbane, his voice suave to sweetness; but it seemed to me there was a subtle mockery in his tone.

"I say, if I should hear anything of them, I'll let you know. Your name? Athol Meldrum—all right, I'll let you know. Good-by."

He was gone and I had failed. I cursed myself for a fool. The man had baffled me. Nay, even I had hurt myself by giving him an inkling of my search. Berna seemed further away from me than ever. Home I went, discouraged and despairful.

Then I began to argue with myself. He must know where they were, and if he really had designs on the girl and was keeping her in hiding my in-interview with him would alarm him. He would take the first opportunity of warning the Winkensteins. When would he do it? That very night in all likelihood. So I reasoned; and I resolved to watch.

I stationed myself in a saloon from where I could command a view of his hotel, and there I waited. I was beginning to think he must have evaded me, when suddenly coming forth alone from the hotel I saw my man.

He was walking swiftly and he took a path that skirted the swamp behind the town. I had no doubt of his mission. My heart began to beat with excitement. I followed breathlessly. There were few cabins hereabouts; it was a lonely place to be so near to town, very quiet and thickly screened from sight. Suddenly he seemed to disappear, and, fearing my pursuit was going to be futile, I rushed forward.

I came to dead stop. There was no one to be seen. He had vanished completely. Blindly I blundered for ward. Then I came to a place where the trail forked. Panting for breath, I hesitated which way to take, and it was in that moment of hesitation that a heavy hand was laid on my shoulder.

"Where away, my young friend?" It was Locasto. His face was Memphis tophelian, his voice edged with

Objected to Knitting in London Co. Council

Knitting needles may not click an accompaniment to the debates in the London county council.

This unwritten law was laid down with emphasis by an irate masculine objector when Dame Beatrice Lyall, member for East Fulham, produced a pair during an all-night session and proceeded to click off interminable hours of debate with as many inches of warm woolen sock.

No woman has yet had the hardihood to produce knitting needles in the house of commons, but in the past men M. P.'s have done so.

The most famous knitter in parliamentary annals was one of the Watson brothers, who were well known to a former generation at Westminster.

Banking Facility

A clearing house is a voluntary association of banks located in the same city joined together to facilitate the daily exchange of checks, drafts and notes among its members. Instead of separate exchanges being made directly by each bank with all other banks.

Grades in Wool

Half-blood sheep means half of one breed and half of another. Half-blood wool is the next grade coarser than fine, but is commonly considered a fine wool—that is, the fibers have smaller diameters than those of the wool which is commonly called "medium wool."

Few Golf Balls Imported

While there is no report that shows the total number of golf balls used in the United States, or the number imported, it is estimated that not more than one-sixth of the balls in use are imported.

irony. I was startled I admit, but I tried to put a good face on it. "Hello," I said; "I'm just taking a stroll."

His black eyes pierced me, his black brows met savagely. The heavy jaw shot forward, and for a moment the man, menacing and terrible, seemed to tower above me.

"You lie!" like explosive steam came the words, and wolf-like his lips parted, showing his powerful teeth. "You lie!" he reiterated. "You followed me. Didn't I see you from the hotel? Didn't I determine to decoy you away. You would try to cross me, would you? You would champion damsels in distress? You pretty fool, you simpleton, you meddler—"

Suddenly, without warning, he struck me square on the face, a blinding, staggering blow that brought me to my knees as falls a pole-axed steer. I was stunned, swaying weakly, trying vainly to get on my feet. Then he struck me again, a bitter, felling blow.

I was completely at his mercy now and he showed me none. He was like a fiend. Rage seemed to rend him. Time and again he kicked me, brutally, relentlessly, on the ribs, on the chest, on the head. Was the man going to do me to death? I shielded myself. I moaned in agony. Would he never stop? Then I became unconscious, knowing that he was still kicking me, and wondering if I would ever open my eyes again.

"Long live the cold-foot tribe! Long live the soreheads!"

It was the Prodigal who spoke. "This outfit buying's got gold mining beaten to a standstill. Here I've been three weeks in the burg and got over ten thousand dollars' worth of grub cached away. Every pound of it will net me 100 per cent profit."

He was very sprightly and elate, but I was in no sort of mood to share in his buoyancy. Physically I had fully recovered from my terrible man-handling, but in spirit I still writhed at the outrage of it. And the worst was I could do nothing. The law could not help me, for there were no witnesses to the assault. I could never cope with this man in bodily strength.

Yet how bitterly I brooded over the business. At times there was even black murder in my heart. I planned schemes of revenge, grinding my teeth in impotent rage the while; and my feelings were complicated by that awful gnawing hunger for Berna that never left me. It seemed to me as if I saw all the world through the medium of my love for her, and that all beauty, all truth, all good was but a setting for this girl of mine.

"Come on," said Jim; "let's go for a walk in the town."

The "Modern Gomorrah" he called it, and he was never tired of expatiating on its iniquity.

We met the Jam-wagon. He had munched in from the creeks that very day. Physically he looked supreme. He was berry-brown, lean, muscular and as full of suppressed energy as an unsprung bear trap. Financially he was well ballasted. Mentally and morally he was in the state of a volcano before an eruption.

You could see in the quick breathing, in the restlessness of this man, a pent-up energy that clamored to exhaust itself in violence and debauch. His fierce blue eyes were wild and roving, his lips twitched nervously. He was an atavism; of the race of those white-bodied, ferocious sea kings that drank deep and died in the din of battle.

As we walked along, Jim did most of the talking in his favorite morality vein. The Jam-wagon puffed silently at his briar pipe, while I, very listless and downhearted, thought largely of my own troubles. Then, in the middle of the block, where most of the music halls were situated, suddenly we met Locasto.

I had thought much over this meeting, and had dreaded it. There are things which no man can overlook, and if it meant death to me, I must again try conclusions with the brute.

He was accompanied by a little bald-headed Jew named Spitzstein, and we were almost abreast of them when I stepped forward and arrested them. My teeth were clenched; I was all a-quiver with passion; my heart beat violently.

He was dressed in that miner's costume in which he always looked so striking. His mouth was grim as granite, and his black eyes hard and repellent as those of a toad.

"Oh, you coward!" I cried. "You vile, filthy coward!"
"Get out of my way," he snarled; "I've got to teach you a lesson."
Once more before I could guard he landed on me with that terrible right-arm swing, and down I went as if a sledge hammer had struck me. But instantly I was on my feet, a thing of blind passion, of desperate fight. I made one rush to throw myself on this human tower of brawn and muscle, when some one plinked me from behind. It was Jim.

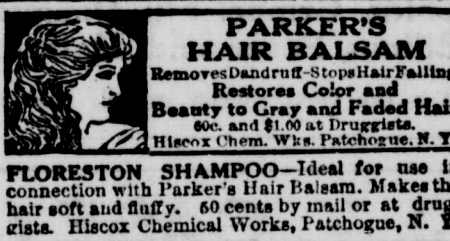

"Easy, boy," he was saying; "you can't fight this big fellow."
Spitzstein was looking on curiously. There was a breathless pause, then, at the psychological moment, the Jam-wagon intervened.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. OPERATOR STAYS AT POST

One of the traditions in the Bell system is that of the spirit of service. A splendid example of this occurred at Barre, Vermont, a short time ago, when Miss Annabelle Tassie answered her line signal and heard the call, "Emergency, fire." As it turned out, the fire was in her own home, and naturally her first impulse was to rush to the scene, but immediately other lights flashed before her on the switchboard and she kept on answering these calls, not knowing what was happening at her home.

CHAPTER I—PART 12

Way back in 1860 a vessel of the Russian-American Company crossed the bar and entered the body of water now known as Humboldt Bay. This ship, in quest of sea otters, was under the command of Jonathan Winship, an American, who bestowed on these waters the name Bay of Rezanov.

The importance of the bay remained obscure until after the cession of the northern territory to the United States in 1814, at which time the necessity was realized for a harbor somewhere along the northern coast of California. In that year Dr. Josiah Gregg, serving his country in the capacity of explorer, traveled northward in search of the Trinity River with orders to trace its course to the mouth in hopes of there discovering a suitable anchorage for ships. After a most hazardous journey in which the members of the party suffered from hunger, exposure, and the attack of Indians, the expedition reached Humboldt Bay on December 20, 1814, and named the body of water Trinity Bay. On April 9 of the following year Lieutenant Ottinger sailed through the narrow opening between the sand spits and rechristened the bay in honor of Baron von Humboldt, the naturalist and explorer.

Being completely land-locked, and situated as it is at a strategic point on an otherwise barren and rocky coast, Humboldt Bay is of the greatest importance as a safe harbor. Some maintenance is necessary to keep the entrance free from shifting sand bars, but in spite of this handicap, Eureka harbor enjoys a very favorable reputation among those listing the city as a port of call. The vast natural resources of this territory, passing through Eureka harbor on their way to all parts of the world, have built a thriving city whose atmosphere of commerce and industry stand out in striking contrast as the visitor enters the city after a drive through the quiet reaches of the redwood forests. Backed by wooded hills, and facing the sea, the prevailing ocean breezes afford an invigorating climate which inoculates all with a spirit of energy. The homes are neat and inviting, the downtown section presents an animated scene of "good business," while above all, the visitor is impressed by an air of extreme cleanliness.

Eureka is listed among the older of California cities, having been founded in 1850 and incorporated in 1856. Its present population is well over the nineteen thousand mark. Sequoia Park, a forty acre grove of beautiful ever-living giant redwoods, offers unequalled recreational features for citizen and visitor.

Leaving Eureka, we travel northward over a ribbon of concrete stretching across the flat marshlands to Arcata, at the upper extremity of Humboldt Bay. Once more we experience that sense of cleanliness which seems to pervade the atmosphere of these northern sea-coast towns, enjoying as they do the dust-free winds from the ocean, and being surrounded by tree-shrouded hills against whose dark background the white houses of the town stand out with startling clearness. Arcata is primarily a residence town, but it is able to boast of large lumbering interests and also takes precedence as one of the leading dairy centers of the county.

Just north of Arcata our course veers more to the westward and we steer our way along the coast to Trinidad, named by the Spanish explorers, Bodega and Hecata, who, on Trinity Sunday, June 9, 1775, entered the bay and named its waters in honor of that religious holiday. This was the first recorded landing of a white man in Humboldt county.

TO WAR AGAINST DRUNKEN DRIVERS

The Division of Motor Vehicles is preparing for a new offensive in its war against drunken drivers, with the establishment of night patrols in the vicinity of roadside resorts suspected of selling liquor to motorists.

This announcement of the new phase of the division's campaign was coincident with the release of figures showing 412 drunken drivers to have been involved in accidents in California during the last six months. Thirty-one of these accidents involved the death of one or more persons.

Applying the familiar adage of an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure, it was announced the officers will be instructed to arrest any person attempting to leave such places in automobiles in an intoxicated condition, and to submit them to a "sobering up" process before permitting them to proceed.

Those caught out on the highways will be dealt with in a more summary manner. Charges of driving while intoxicated will be placed against them and they will be taken to the nearest jail.

"The motor vehicle act specifically confines the duties of traffic officers to enforcement of the traffic laws," said a bulletin issued by Chief Inspector George F. Moynahan. "We have, therefore, instructed them to take no part in the enforcement of liquor laws and to stay out of places suspected of selling liquor."

"But we are vitally concerned in saving human lives from the irresponsible drunken driver, and propose to prevent persons in an intoxicated condition from driving on the highways."

"For this reason our men will be instructed to work along roads known to be used by persons frequenting night resorts where liquor is sold, and in the vicinity of such resorts."

Moynahan said the patrols would give particular attention to the hours between midnight and morning, when many "parties" are breaking up and the individual members returning to their homes in cars.

Officers will be instructed to take intoxicated persons to the nearest physician for examination. Moynahan declared, however, that it is not necessary to do this to establish intoxication and that the arresting officer may himself submit the arrested party to such tests as shall in the judgment of the officer determine whether the offender is intoxicated.

The chief inspector announced the war on drunken drivers had resulted in the revocation of the licenses of 377 persons within the last seven months.

AN EXCEPTIONAL ARRAY OF ATTRACTIONS PROMISED

The Daly City Theatre has on tap for the coming week an exceptional array of screen and stage attractions, starting with tonight's special, Bebe Daniels in "What a Night," a fast-moving comedy thrill picture play, said to be more spooky than either "The Gorilla" or "The Cat and the Canary." Sam and his Country Store will be on the same bill, with a big party on the stage. On this same bill there will be a News reel, a Comedy and a Scenic.

Saturday at the Daly City Theatre is "Silvernite," and the theatre will present as the screen attractions two big super-picture plays, headed by Jack London's "Smoke Bellew," with Conway Tearle and Charles Murray in First National's comedy special, "The Head Man." Snub Pollard will also be seen in a short length comedy called "Think and Thin." At the matinee there will be free candy for the kiddies and another thrilling episode of the serial "Vultures of the Sea."

For Sunday, "Snooky" White and his merry comedians will be seen in another big fun show called "Cold Feet," a chilling, thrilling story of the gold rush days of Alaska. The screen will offer the first showing of Ann Christy and Donald Keeth in the special "Just Off Broadway," a fast moving story of the "racketeer," full of pep, action and romance. The usual short subjects will be on the same bill.

Ruth Taylor, James Hall, Harrison Ford and Lila Lee form the principals of the cast in "Just Married," a big fun special from the Paramount studios, which will be the feature attraction for Monday, also with the "Silvernite" special.

Milton Sills will hold the boards for Tuesday in a first run showing of "Love and the Devil." For Wednesday the Daly City will present Richard Barthelmess in "Scarlet Seas," while Alice White, the new IT girl of the screen, together with Jack Mulhall, will be the attraction for Thursday in "Naughty Baby," a big special from First National.

P. G. & E. TO SPEND AN IMMENSE SUM

The expenditure of $8,630,000 for the second and third units of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Mokelumne river power development has been authorized.

The Salt Springs dam, the first unit of this great development on which the company has been working for several months, is now taking shape.

This Colossus, when completed, will be one of the largest structures of its kind in the world. Into its gigantic frame will go 3,000,000 cubic yards of granite. Its height will be 300 feet, its crest or top length 1,300 feet and its base thickness 960 feet.

The second unit on which construction orders have been released calls for the building of approximately 20 miles of conduit between the Salt Springs dam and the Tiger Creek forebay, from which water will be dropped a distance of 1,200 feet into the new Tiger Creek power house. This new flume will be of the open type conduit with siphons and tunnels en route, involving an expenditure of $4,460,000.

The third unit calls for an appropriation of $4,170,000 and involves the building of the new Tiger Creek power house. This plant will be equipped with two main water wheel units of 36,000 horsepower each, direct connected to electric generators, giving the plant an installed capacity of approximately 72,000 horsepower.

To convey the water down the mountain side from the forebay provisions are made for the construction of steel penstocks which will be 4,900 feet in length, containing 7,000,000 pounds of steel.

About 1,400 miles of railway line is to be electrified in Spain.

"THE CHRISTIAN SUNDAY" TOPIC OF YOUNG PEOPLE

What does the Bible say we should do on Sunday? What do you think is right to do on Sunday? What is your opinion on this present day attitude? If you are a young person, interested in this and more personal questions of Sunday observance, you will enjoy the meeting to be held Sunday evening at 6:45 at the Calvary Baptist Mission, 5724 Mission street. You can at least hear, and possibly contribute your views to a discussion on "The Christian Sunday—What it is For and Why?"

Aside from the regular devotional meetings on Sunday, we have plenty of good parties and various entertainments. On Monday evening we meet at Suto Baths for a swim, and on Friday we meet at the church for choir practice, and a snappy young people's meeting. At least once a month we have a party, generally the third Friday.

Again you are invited to come and join us with the assurance that you are welcome. I. L. S.
